discover the in Limousin females

"I like to keep my females at least 50% Limousin...they just seem to be better mother cows than anything else we have tried."

Breeders from all across the U.S. are testifying to the fact that Limousin females have the most profitable combination of reproductive efficiency and muscling. That's right, finally a female that has the necessary thickness to produce calves with extra weight and superior carcasses and still have fertility, milking ability, ease of calving and mothering ability.

Recent research at the University of Georgia showed that Limousin cows ranked first in repreeding efficiency when compared with three quarter Simmentals, Brahmans and Polled Hereford cows. In Clay Center Research Report #7 the Limousin females had the highest percent pregnant and the least amount of calving problems of all the breeds compared. The percentage Limousin cows also weaned heavier calves than the black baldle cows.

Limousin cows of all percentages mean: extra calves, extra pounds and extra profits. Put some extra profit into your current herd with Limousin bulls or females.
